criter O'Higgies, now at the Newcastle yards.

Today the majority of the Madrid press suddenly changed their tone, recommending the people to keep cool and to have no fear of American naval or military preparations or Jingo menaces. They are marely intended, these organs say, to elbow Spain into concessions in all pending questions, virtually amounting to a recognition of American pretensions to mediate or interfere in Cuban affairs. Even papers so far apart as the Imparcial, El Liberal, Correspondencis and the Correo Epoca, express the opinion that Spain will have her own way and fair play if the Spaniards remain united, determined and cool, and avoid furnishing the pretexts and opportunities that America is evidently seeking.

opportunities that America is evidently seeking.

All the papers publish paragraphs stating that rumors about the real purport of the reports of the Spanish and American commissions that investigated the causes of the Maine disaster are premature. Should the Spanish report, however, expose grounds for considering the explosion accidental, as seems to have been the decided opinion of all the Spanish authorities in Cuba from the beginning, the Spanish government will certifily stand by its official commissions report and will neither admit contrary conclusive nor damands founded on such inferences.
